

DEFENSE OPENS
IN WILL CASE.

Says No Undue Influence
Was Used to Secure Signature to Will.

A DOZEN WILLS WERE MADE.

Mrs. Jennie Thompson Took Stand
Yesterday and All Efforts to Shake
Her Testimony Proved Unavailing.
Thinks Woman's Mind Unsound.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 5.—The defense in the dispute over the will of the late Mrs. Amanda Morton of Connellsville, opened its case this morning. Attorney L. A. Horvath outlined the case. He said that a dozen wills were made, first by one side and then by the other, and all were about the same; leaving the bulk of the property to A. B. Morton during his lifetime and then it was to go to Ralph Morton, the grandson.

Mr. Howard took the stand and told of the signing of the will dated June 22, which he had drawn up. He also told of drawing up the codicil, which Mrs. Morton signed after it was explained to her. He expressed his opinion that Mrs. Morton was of sound mind at the time.

The last witness for the plaintiff was Mary E. Confield, a trained nurse, employed by the Mortons, who signed the will of June 22. Miss Confield said she did not know he was signing a will, as she was not informed of the contents of the document. She said she did not think Mrs. Morton competent at that time to make a will.

The feature of Thursday afternoon's testimony was the story of Mrs. Jennie L. Thompson. She was on the stand more than an hour and a half and subjected to a searching cross examination by Attorney R. P. Kennedy for the defense. She told her story plainly and efforts of counsel to make her vary on cross examination were unsuccessful. The direct examination was conducted by Attorney Miller of Pittsburgh.

"I've signed some kind of a paper; I don't know what it was. We'll make a will of our own in which I will have things as I want them," was the statement Mrs. Thompson repeated as the late Mrs. Morton whispered to her on June 22, 1906, after she had signed the will in which Mrs. Thompson was not mentioned.

Mrs. Thompson made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Morton, although about this time she had had some trouble with Ralph Morton. Relative to the will of June 22, Mrs. Thompson testified that she was sitting with Mrs. Morton and that the latter's husband, Alexander Morton, and grandson, Ralph Morton, were in a adjoining room. They called Mrs. Morton into the room and after some little time the latter returned, whispering to Mrs. Thompson what she had done.

The leading candidate on hand, and the center of interest, was J. L. Evans, who won the primary fight for the Burgess' nomination. Although quiet and unassuming, Mr. Evans made a good impression upon those present and was given repeated assurances of support. S. S. Snader, the candidate for Tax Collector, was also there with the glad hand and cheerful countenance. The Republican candidate for Auditor, J. D. Lambert, was among those present.

HUSBAND WAS BAD;
SHOOTS HIM DEAD

Negress at Boswell Resorts Abuse by Spouse and Used Gun With Fatal Effect.

BOSWELL, Feb. 5.—Annoyed the greater part of the day, she said, by the actions of her husband, Nellie Patterson, colored, a domestic employed at the club house of the Merchants' Coal Company in this place, shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon fired through the kitchen door a bullet which lodged in the abdomen of W. H. Patterson, her husband, who was knocking for admission. Patterson dropped to the floor of the porch and physicians who were called immediately after the shooting believe he is fatally wounded. The wife was given a preliminary hearing before Burgess C. S. Solles and committed to the Somerset jail to await the outcome of her husband's injuries.

The couple, it is understood, has had frequent quarrels. She was employed by the late J. G. Logan, the Superintendent, killed in the explosion here last week, and he was employed in the mine that claimed Mr. Logan. Patterson had not been working since the explosion, and according to those who have seen him frequently on the streets, he has been intoxicated most of the time while idle. It is said that he bothered the woman the greater part of the day, and when he knocked on the door she could not restrain herself any longer.

MEDICOS MET WITH
DR. BELL AT DAWSON

There Was a Good Attendance and the Host Read An Interesting Paper
Before the Feast.

A good meeting of the Young Medical Club was held last evening at the home of Dr. H. J. Bell at Dawson. It was well attended, all members being present with the exception of those who were out of town or kept away on account of sickness. Dr. H. C. Hoffman of Connellsville, Dr. Herbert Hall of Vanderbilt, and Dr. J. L. Cochran of Star Junction, were the guests of the club.

Dr. Bell read an excellent paper on "Interrupted Convalescents." The paper was original and made a good impression upon the doctors. A general discussion followed.

At the conclusion of the business meeting the guests assembled in the dining room where an exceptionally well appointed chicken waffle supper was served. The decorations were in keeping with Washington's birthday. The place cards were miniature hatchets while bunches of cherries were given as favors. A large bouquet of red carnations formed the attractive center piece. The next meeting will be held on the first Thursday evening in March.

Many Coal Cars Are Idle.
HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 5.—Pennsylvania railroad officials in this city are looking for room sufficient to store from 6,000 to 7,000 coal cars on account of the decrease in coal trade which has fallen off nearly one-half during the past week. The cars will be stored in Harrisburg and Ephrata yards, and at points along the Philadelphia division.

TWO MEN KILLED
WHEN CAGE DROPS.

Officials Blame Machinery
for Accident in Somerset County Yesterday.

TEN LIVES ARE ENDANGERED.

Victims Are Caught When Cage Ascends and Engineer Stops Just in Time to Save Others—Coroner Kimmell to Conduct Investigation.

BOSWELL, Feb. 5.—The machinery, more than the engineer, is blamed by those officially concerned for the death of two miners yesterday morning at Shaft No. 1 of the Jennings-Quemahoning Coal Company at Jerome. The dead:

Nike Mulderick, aged 33 years, and married.
Charles Bergess, aged 27 years, and unmarried.

The engineer, whose name is being withheld by the coal company, says something got wrong with the machinery and he was unable to control the cage. He is a new man, having entered the employ of the company last Saturday, but has the reputation of being an experienced engineer. He has hoisted and lowered the miners every day since last Saturday and seemed to understand the machinery thoroughly. Following the double fatality, he went to his boarding house and he appears to be greatly affected by the accident.

The two men who were killed, together with eight others, boarded the cage to be lowered as members of the day force. For a number of feet the elevator descended at the usual speed, but suddenly it dropped with a swiftness sickening to the ten passengers. Bergess and Mulderick, according to the other miners, attempted to jump off the moment the cage struck the bottom. Before they could do this, however, it shot upward, and they were caught between the timbers and the cage, the head of Bergess being torn from the trunk. The other occupants managed to signal the engineer and the cage was brought to a stop, the eight getting off uninjured.

There is a probability that an inquiry, for the purpose of placing the blame for the deaths of the two miners, will be conducted by Coroner W. S. Kimmell, of Somerset. The bodies have been prepared for burial by Undertaker Dietrich of Windsor, but no time has been set for the funerals.

BOOK TRUST FIGHTS
NEW SCHOOL CODE

But Independents Will Unite in Effort to Have its Passage Secured.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 5.—Activity on the part of new representatives of the school book trust evidences the fact that the section of the new school code dealing with teachers recommending to boards of directors or controllers, the class of text books desired, is not acceptable to that corporation. Very strangely the trust's most powerful rival is of the same opinion and the two concerns propose getting together to have the section in question eliminated from the act.

On the other hand, the dozen or more fairly healthy independent book companies are anxious that the section remain in the bill and will oppose any effort to kill it. Their agents have also been to the capitol during the last few days taking initial steps towards bringing about the passage of the school measure. The independents will demand a hearing on that particular section if the trust succeeds in inducing the committee to consider the question of making the desired modification.

Although the bill just presented does not go so far as to take the power of ordering books from the directors, it specifically sets forth that teachers may make recommendations as to books wanted and that the board should give such recommendations cognizance. The trust feels that this is almost tantamount to the teachers selecting the books.

Being practically shut out of competition by the influences, used by the book trust to gain favor with school boards, the independents see in the section the one and only opportunity for placing the bidding on an equal basis. They are willing to take chances on the meritorious quality of their books and claim that with teachers as the judges every company, be it strong or weak, will receive a square deal.

DEFENSE OPENS IN WILL CASE

sion that Mrs. Thompson was ill in South Connelville after July when the second will was signed, Mr. Morton went to visit her several times and didn't want to do so he told Mrs. Morton that his wife "tormented the life out of him," and wouldn't give him any rest until he made the visits. Counsel contended that this did not indicate that the husband had his own way in everything. Defense also brought out that when Mrs. Thompson came to the house with the second will she brought it covered in a basket. Mrs. Thompson testified that on this visit Mrs. Morton told her that Ralph would shoot her (Mrs. Thompson) if he found what had been done and that Mr. Morton would drive her (his wife) out of the house. Counsel then showed that at the time of this alleged statement Mr. and Mrs. Morton had lived together more than half a century.

DO IT NOW.

Procrastination is Often The Thief of Something More Than Time.

Nearly every man who is worth his salt has something of value in his possession—something that he wouldn't like to lose—and yet, very often he leaves that something lying in a drawer at his home or in a place not in his line of his office, running the risk of fire or thieves, never giving the matter a thought, until he wakes up some morning and finds a deed, or a note, or a mortgage, or some other valuable paper he wants immediately, is missing. Then he rents a safe deposit box—locks the stable door after the horse is stolen. Why not place your valuables in safe deposit box, when a private safe is not possible. A forwarding absolute security, may be rented from The First National Bank of Connelville for less than a cent a day?

Creditors of Latrobe Merchant Elect
Charles H. Elcher of Scottsdale As Trustee—Farmers' Institute Opens Today.

SCOTTSDALE, Feb. 4.—Burgess William Ferguson of Scottsdale has been appointed Deputy Coroner by Dr. H. Albert McMurray, Coroner of Westmoreland county. Mr. Ferguson was sworn into office by Recorder Thomas at Greensburg yesterday afternoon. The selection is looked upon as a most suitable one, and one that will give excellent satisfaction to this section. Mr. Ferguson is adapted by training and experience for the position. He is an undertaker of many years' experience, being the junior member of the firm of Owen & Ferguson, has a wide acquaintance throughout the county, and is now closing a term of three years as Burgess. He has been an efficient man in this section during the several years incumbency of Dr. C. A. Wyman as Coroner and is one of the best posted men on the laws of that department in the county, so that Dr. McMurray's selection is a wise one.

Appointed as Trustee.
Charles H. Elcher was in Latrobe yesterday attending a meeting of the creditors of P. M. Becker, a hardware merchant of that place who filed a petition in bankruptcy proceedings with the District Court of the United States at Pittsburgh last month. Mr. Elcher was elected by the creditors to act as the Trustee in the proceedings. The liabilities are scheduled at $12,322.45, with resources of $8,758.36. Mr. Elcher is in the hardware business himself, being of the firm of Elcher & Graft, who have been in business here for several years, and is one well capable of putting the bankrupt firm on the best possible basis under the conditions.

A Shoot Tomorrow.
There will be a shooting match held out at the grounds near the slaughter house beyond Brownstown tomorrow afternoon, which will attract the marksmen from Conneltsville, Mt. Pleasant, Altoona, Ruffsedale and the surrounding towns. Chickens and ducks will be the principal game to be shot for, and a large attendance is expected.

A New Electric Sign.
Since the passage of the ordinance permitting electric signs to be hung, several new ones have been put out, the latest to be erected by the West Penn Electric Company for J. Falk's business place in the New Scottsdale house building, a handsome sign of 50 lamps.

Farmers' Institute Today.
The farmers and others of this locality are greatly interested in the annual Farmers' Institute which begins in Petersen's Business College hall this afternoon and continues until Saturday night. A very fine program has been arranged as has been published in full in "The Courier." There are no better institutes held than in Scottsdale and the attendance has always been very large.

S. F. Potter Resigns.
S. F. Potter, who has been the secretary of the Scottsdale Savings & Trust Company since its organization, resigned this week, and his place is taken by Harry Laughlin, the present treasurer. Mr. Potter lives in Greensburg and the press of private business interests there and elsewhere causes him to relinquish the place here.

The following is the report of W. S. Deffenbaugh, Supervising Principal, for the month ending February 2, 1909. The first column denotes the number of pupils enrolled for the month.

Dear Miss:

Of course you are proud of the clear, fresh condition of your skin and your delicate complexion, which all your girl friends so envy.

"What do you do for it?" they say. "Nothing—it is perfectly natural," you are proud to answer.

But your complexion may not remain fair if you are not extremely careful about the toilet soap you use. Beware of cheap, heavily scented soaps. Most of them contain "free" alkali, which in time ruins the complexion, bringing pimples, blotches, blackheads, etc.

And even the purest soap doesn't protect you from unsightly skin affections. So if you would safeguard your complexion, go to your druggist for a cake of

SCHOOL CODE IS UNDER FIRE

But State Directors' Association Favors the Measure.

SOME WISHED IT POSTPONED

Resolution to That Effect Is Voted Down After Lively Debate—Plan Made That Sufficient Time Has Not Been Afforded.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 5.—The proposed new school code for the state was the subject of two stirring meetings of the state school directors' association. Efforts were made to have the association go on record as demanding that the legislature postpone action for two years, but they failed after an acrimonious debate. Last night the code was discussed at a public meeting of school directors and superintendents from all over the state. The speakers were Lieutenant Governor Murphy, Secretary of Internal Affairs Hinkle, a former school superintendent, and Superintendent of Public Instruction Schaeffer, who supported the measures.

Hugh B. Eastburn of Doylestown, chairman of the committee on resolutions of the association, presented a resolution recommending that the legislature be petitioned to postpone action on the school code for two years. It was claimed that none of the directors had time to study the new law. The resolution was immediately turned over to the legislative committee, composed of H. M. Lewis, Pottsville; L. A. Coburn, Somerset; A. J. Simons, New Philadelphia; M. H. Henning, Williamsport; and W. H. Parsons, Phoenixville. The committee returned shortly with a negative recommendation and the suggestion that for the present the convention take no action in regard to the school law but appoint a committee of three to confer with the state commission which drew up the code.

The resolution was defeated and another adopted for a committee of three to confer with the legislature.

TEXAS MASONS OBJECT

Oppose Plan to Make President-Elect Taft Mason "at Sight."

Houston, Tex., Feb. 5.—The Masonic chapter at Wortham, Tex., adopted strong resolutions condemning the action of the grand master of Ohio in granting a special dispensation in the case of President-elect Taft, permitting him to become a Mason "at sight" Feb. 18 at Columbus, O.

It is expected that other Texas lodges in other sections of the south will take similar action. The resolutions will be forwarded to the grand high priest.

STATEMENT BY MELISH

Takes Exception to Action of Wortham (Tex.) Masons.

Cincinnati, Feb. 5.—W. B. Melish, past grand master of the grand lodge of Masons, said that the adoption of the resolution by the Masonic chapter at Wortham, Texas, condemning the action of the grand master of Ohio in granting a special dispensation in the case of President-elect Taft, permitting him to become a Mason "at sight" is unprecedented and inexcusable.

He declared that the action of the grand master of Ohio was absolutely regular and Masonic in every respect and in accordance with Masonic precedent. He said that the Wortham chapter, in adopting the resolution, is either an irregular chapter or it is violating the tenets of Masonry in passing such a resolution and that the grand high priest can be asked to discipline the chapter.

Twelve-Year-Old Thought He Was Not Appreciated.

Sheraton, Pa., Feb. 5.—Elmer Schindler, the twelve-year-old son of George Schindler, a South Sheraton carpenter, hanged himself under the porch of a neighbor's house, supposedly because he was unappreciated.

He was of a morose disposition, refusing to play with other children and complaining constantly that he was not properly treated by his relatives and friends in general.

BURKE REMODELS BILL.

It Applies to Vessels Carrying 50 Passengers or More.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Appreciating the value of suggestions that have arisen since the introduction of his bill to require all ocean passenger vessels to be equipped with wireless telegraphy, Representative Burke of Pennsylvania reintroduced his bill with several amendments.

As amended the bill applies to ocean passenger steamers certified to carry fifty passengers or more between ports 300 miles distant instead of 500 miles as in the first bill. The new bill thus makes the requirements applicable to coastwise vessels except on the great lakes. The penalty is a maximum fine of $1,000 or one year's imprisonment.

BIG STICK BUSY.

President Protests Against the Anti-Jap School Bill.

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 5.—With the defeat in the lower house of two of the anti-Japanese measures, followed by the unexpected passage of a third bill segregating Japanese school children in separate schools along with Chinese, Koreans and other Asiatics, President Roosevelt again has taken a hand in the anti-Japanese legislation that for the last week has drawn international attention to California. Hardly had the bill been passed by the assembly before Governor Gillett received the following telegram from the president:

"What is the rumor that the California legislature has passed a bill excluding the Japanese children from the public schools? This is the most offensive bill of all, and in my judgment is clearly unconstitutional, and we should at once have to test it in the courts. Can it be stopped in the legislature or by veto?"

The governor at once sent a reply, the nature of which he declines at this time to make public, and he requested from the president an immediate answer. Pending the receipt of another telegram from President Roosevelt, Governor Gillett declined to discuss the action of the assembly.

IMPAIR CONFIDENCE.

Justice Gaylor Says Danger Point Has Been Reached by Courts.

New York, Feb. 5.—Speaking in the Astor hotel before the Portia club, composed of women who have taken a course of lectures in law, Justice Gaylor of the appellate division of the supreme court made a surprising statement regarding the recent eighty-cent gas law decision. He said that in his opinion the country had reached a danger point and he was exceedingly apprehensive when the decisions of the lower federal courts declaring the law unconstitutional went to the United States supreme court.

"If the decisions of these lower courts that the law was unconstitutional had been allowed to go through," he said, "I believe the confidence of the people in our institutions would have been so impaired that the foundations of the country would have been shaken."

FAILS TO BREAK IN

Judge Frustrates Scheme to Live at County's Expense in Jail.

Sheraton, Pa., Feb. 5.—Alex Thompson stole copper wire in sight of on-lookers, three weeks ago ostensibly to get into a jail for the winter.

When arraigned before Judge McCutcheon he refused to have counsel assigned him and insisted on pleading guilty. The verdict of guilty was taken and as the prisoner was gleefully contemplating a three or four months sojourn in jail Judge McCutcheon blazed his hopes with two cruel words, "Sentence suspended." When the prisoner turned to protest against the harsh ukase of the court he was cut short with a snappy "Got out." He reluctantly did.

PARESIS MAY BE CURED

Dr. O'Brien of Massillon State Hospital to Demonstrate Feb. 9.

Canton, O., Feb. 5.—That satisfactory progress has been made in the treatment of paresis patients at the Massillon state hospital by Dr. O'Brien, who claimed a year ago that he had discovered the paresis germ and had worked out a plan to cure persons afflicted with the disease, is the announcement made by hospital officials.

Feb. 9 at the Massillon state hospital for the insane a clinic will be held by Drs. O'Brien and Talfe to demonstrate what can be done for paresis patients.

MINOR MATTERS IN CIVIL COURT.

Preece Case Postponed/When Plaintiff Is Taken Suddenly Ill.

NON-SUIT FOR BLACKLIST.

W. Grant Smith Said Ohio People Company Had Injured Him But Court Could See No Case—Plaintiff Wants Another Chance.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 5.—When the jury in the case of William Preece against the Payette County Railroad Company reported to Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen in No. 2 court room yesterday ready to take up the consideration of the testimony, the plaintiff's attorneys, Carr and Carr, reported that Preece had been taken suddenly ill and could not be present in court. Under these circumstances the case was continued and the jury discharged. The jury was sworn on Wednesday and had been taken to Dunbar township to view the plaintiff's premises, for the taking of a portion of which the suit had been instituted.

In another case of a similar character a jury was empaneled, but the consideration of the case will not be taken up until 9 o'clock this morning. This is the case of Peter Forley against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company.

Judge Van Swearingen granted a compulsory nonsuit in the case of W. Grant Smith against the Ohio People Company. Smith claimed damages because of the existence of an alleged blacklist. He claimed that he was persecuted by officers of the defendant company because he failed to pay a bill he owed at the company's store; this persecution taking the form of influencing employers to prevent his employment. Smith failed to make out a case.

When Mrs. William Crawford, the plaintiff in an action against John Dunagan, failed to respond in court when her name was called, the court granted a compulsory nonsuit.

The case of Charles M. Scott against the Consolidated Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of Harrisburg, was settled out of court.

Attorneys Johnson and Rush filed a motion to strike off the compulsory nonsuit granted in the case of Ellis Worth Darrall against the Bessemer Coke Company.

W. L. WOODSON DEAD

Editor of American Press Succumbs to His Injuries.

New York, Feb. 5.—William L. Woodson, editor of the American Press, died of blood poisoning at St. John's hospital in New York, Saturday, in an attempt to board a train at Glenwood station of the New York Central railroad. Mr. Woodson fell under the wheels and was severely injured. Taken to the hospital, Mr. Woodson's leg was amputated below the knee. He was making good progress toward recovery when the complication set in that caused his death. Deceased was a native of Virginia and the remains will be taken to Lynchburg, in that state, where interment will take place.

Mr. Woodson's paper, the American Press, is issued from the main office of the American Press association in New York. He was formerly manager of the Atlantic branch of the association. He had a wide reputation in the south as a journalist of great ability, a reputation that has been enhanced during his years of service as editor of the American Press. He was fifty-five years old.

MAN IN THE BOX

Express Messenger Frustrates Plan to Rob His Car.

Toledo, O., Feb. 5.—Toledo police and railroad authorities are investigating "a man in the box" mystery which they believe was an attempt to rob the express car on a Lake Shore train. Since Wednesday morning, when the strange case was reported, the matter had been suppressed.

In the car was a long box consigned from Toledo to Worcester, Mass., by the American Express company. Near Sandusky the messenger heard a voice coming from the box and upon forcing the lid discovered a man, who jumped out and began a struggle. The messenger, however, pulled his revolver and compelled the stranger to throw up his hands. The train was stopped and the man hustled out of the car into the darkness. Cleveland and Toledo were notified but there is no clue.

BOY CLEARS UP MURDER

Disappearance of Farmer and Finding of Body Explained.

Mount Gleed, O., Feb. 5.—His death a mystery for almost a year, new evidence tending to show that Jacob Garver, a farmer living at Belleville, Richmond county, who disappeared last April, was murdered and his body thrown into a creek, has been unearthed by the county prosecutor.

The story of Garver's murder is related by a small boy. The boy says he was threatened with death if he told. He says Garver was murdered and gives the names of three men, who may be arrested. He says also that the body was hidden under the floor of a saloon in the neighborhood for some time before it was deposited in the creek where it was found.

ANOTHER MARATHON TONIGHT

Shrub and Longboat Meet in Long Race in Madison Square Garden.

New York, Feb. 5.—Tonight in Madison Square Garden two of the greatest runners on earth will try to discover the briefest possible time in which 26 miles and 385 yards can be run around a circular indoor track, ten laps to the mile.

The contestants are Alfred Shrub, the phenomenal English distance runner and holder of several world's records, and Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian, conqueror of Dorando, who has won a reputation for speed and endurance.

ALFRED SHRUBB.

Shrub for ten miles at least is probably the fastest man in the world. He possesses remarkable endurance and phenomenal sprinting ability. If the Indian cannot keep pace with Shrub in the first twelve miles and the latter is able to gain a lap it is generally believed that Longboat will suffer a defeat.

Longboat's two victories over Dorando have caused him to be regarded as a high-class long-distance man, but the experts say that both Dorando and Hayes have been overrated.

MONAT CONFESSES

Tells How He Slew Aged Man With Bolt For Weapon.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Napoleon Monat, arrested for the murder of aged John Kliff, a restaurant keeper at Hopewell Junction, told the authorities his story of the crime. George Conrow, Monat's accomplice, is also in jail.

"It was all prearranged by Conrow and myself," said Monat. "I procured a draft bolt and we went toward the Kliff house. Conrow agreed to watch at the crossing while I got the money. 'When I entered the backroom I laid a nickel on the counter and asked for a cob pipe. Kliff turned to get the pipe and I struck him on the head with the bolt. He did not fall and I struck him again, causing him to fall to the floor. Mrs. Kliff came out and grabbed me by the shoulder. I snatched her with the bolt and she fell in my arms. I carried her back to her bed, wrapped her in the bedclothes and then took $255 from a handbag."

"I then left the building, whistled for Conrow and divided the money. That morning Conrow and I viewed the body after the discovery of the murder. We then went to New Haven, where we bought clothes and lavished our money on women."

HASKELL GIVES BOND

Governor of Oklahoma Appears in Court This Morning.

Muskogee, Feb. 6.—Governor C. N. Haskell appeared in court here this morning and gave bond for his appearance for trial under the indictment returned by the federal grand jury there Wednesday. It is said here that Governor Haskell will insist upon an immediate trial.

The attitude of the legislature toward Governor Haskell's indictment resolved itself into a strictly party question, when the houses adopted resolutions reposing "continued confidence" in the chief executive. The Republican minority voted solidly against the resolution.

A GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI

By THOMAS A. WISE
Novelized from the Play by Frederick R. Toombs

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY THOMAS A. WISE

"It would be a great chance," he murmured half aloud; "next thing to being a senator."
The old Mississippi heard the young man's words.
"I reckon it would," he drawled in agreement.
"You feel sure you want me?" urged the other.
Langdon chuckled.
"I asked you," he said.
Haines came abruptly to decision.
"I've thought it over, senator, and it seems to me it will be a great chance in every way. I'll accept. We'll fix it up tomorrow, and I'll try to make you a good secretary."

Langdon held forth his hand.
"And I'll try to make you a good senator, my boy. Fix up nothing tomorrow. Your duties begin tonight. You are to come to dinner with me and my daughters."

CHAPTER IX.

A NEW KIND OF POLITICAL PARTNERSHIP.

THE combination of the forces of Langdon and Haines did not bud much favor among the powers that are—at the capital. Senator Pemberton promptly demanded an explanation from Stevens as to how he had allowed "his senator" to engage as his secretary "this ineffectual man Haines, a reporter who didn't know his place."

"Here we've put Langdon on naval affairs because we knew he didn't understand what's going on, and you, Stevens, supposed to be the statesman, produce of the political mill, you fall asleep and let him take up a man whom nobody can control, one who knows the inside workings of Washington and who will take particular pleasure in teaching your fellow Mississippian far too much for our good."

Stevens' reply, to effect that probably Haines would consent to be "taken care of" if judiciously approached, was decided by the observant body. "A young reformer grows fat on notoriety," he laughed, "and think what a scandal he would have for his newspaper if we took a chance on disclosing our hand to him. No, no, Stevens; we must have him watched and try to discredit him in some way. Perhaps we can make Langdon believe that his secretary is a dishonest."

Congressman Norton was another man who was dismayed at the formation of the firm of Langdon and Haines. Young Randolph, too, could not forget the defeat and humiliation he had previously suffered at Haines' hands and grew more bitter as the reporter's influence over his father grew stronger. But Haines' most effective enemy had arisen in the person he would be the last to suspect, one whom he unceasingly admired, one whose very words he had come to cherish. And possibly it was not all her own fault that Carolina Langdon had enlisted her services, subtle and quite overwhelming (owing to Haines' fervent worship of her) against the secretary. Perhaps the social system of which she had become a part in Washington had something to do with the craving to become a leader in that fascinating world whose dazzling variety and infinite diversion seemed to all her soul with all that it yearned for. Love she had, for she had now promised to wed Congressman Norton. She loved him fondly; she had confessed to him, and gradually she came to work desperately against Haines, who, she had been convinced by Norton and Randolph, would prove a stumbling block to them, to her father, to herself in her career at the capital. If his influence over the senator should be permitted to exist or to increase. And so on the surface Carolina Langdon was most amiable to the secretary, encouraged him in his attentions to her, led him surely into her power, Norton having prevailed on her to keep the knowledge of their engagement secret from every one, even her father.

The days and nights became filled with important work for Senator Langdon and his secretary. Together they went over the important measures outlined what appeared to be the best course of procedure and carried it into effect as far as possible. Langdon became a prominent figure in the senate, owing to his consistent support of measures that fitted in with the public policy, or what should be the public policy, of the nation. He had learned that the only practicable way to outwit or to cope with the members of the dominating machine, made up, he was surprised to see, of members of both the parties—only two in Washington—was to oppose what the machine wanted with enough power to force it to grant him what he believed the public ought to have. He was described by some of the hidebound "funders" on "capital hill" as "the only brainy man who had fought the machine in thirty years."

At the home he had later established in Washington as preferable to the fashionable hotel were frequently seen a small circle of senators and congressmen who had become known to the aristocratic party bosses in both houses of congress as the "Langdon crowd," which crowd was admitted to be somewhat of a factor when it came to prevail on the president to take over 11,000 posthumers from the appointment class and put them under the control of the civil service commission, resulting in the necessity of a competitive examination for these postmasters instead of their securing positions through political favoritism. Those who did not know Langdon intimately suggested that "this fellow ought to be taken care of." What in God's name does he want? A committee chairmanship? An ambassadorship for some Mississippi charcoal burner? A couple of federal judgeships for his friends? Well, whatever it is, give it to him and get him in with the rest of us."

Again it was Peabody who had the deciding say.
"There's only one thing worse than a young reformer, and that's an old one," he laughed bitterly at a secret conference at his apartment in the luxurious Louis Napoleon hotel. "The young one thinks he is going to live and wants our future profits for himself. The old one thinks he's going to 'do, and he's sore at leaving so much graft behind him."

Heads and hearts thinking and throbbing together, Langdon and his secretary, Haines, plodded along. They had learned to lean on each other, the young gaining inspiration from the old, the old gaining strength from the young. They loved each other, and more than any love, they trusted one another. And Hope Georgia watched it all and rejoiced, for she believed with all the accrued erudition of eighteen years of innocent girlhood that Mr. Bud Haines was quite the finest specimen of young manhood this world had ever produced. How could she have happened! She was sure that she had never met his equal, not even in that memorable week she had spent in Jackson.

The passing weeks taught Haines that he was deeply in love with Carolina, and, though he had endeavored to keep the knowledge of this from her, her woman's intuition had told her his secret, and she stifled the momentary regrets that fitted into her mind, because she was now in "the game" herself, the Washington game that consumes the woman as well as the man and makes her a slave to its fancy. No one but herself and Norton knew how deeply she had "plunged" on a certain possible turn of the political cards. She must not, she could not, lose to life itself were to remain of value to her, and on her way over this secretary she was told it all depended.

A subject that for some unexplainable reason frequently lodged in Haines' mind was that of the apparent assiduity with which Mrs. Spangler cultivated Senator Langdon's friend ship. For several years she had occupied a high social position at the capital, he well knew, but various indelible, intangible rumors he had heard, he could not state exactly where, had made him regret her growing intimacy with the girls and with the senator. They had met her through letters of introduction of the most trustworthy and assuring character from people of highest social rank in Virginia, where the Langdons had many friends, but even so, Haines recalled people who wrote introductory letters are sometimes thoughtless in considering all the circumstances of the parties they introduce, and residents of Virginia who had not been in the capital for years might be forgiven for not knowing of all the more recent developments in the lives of those they knew in Washington. While not wishing to have the senator know of his intrusion, the secretary determined to investigate Mrs. Spangler and her present mode of life at his first opportunity, hoping the while that his quest would reveal her to be what the Langdons considered her—a widow of wealth and fashion and residence at the capital because the memories of her late husband, a former congressman of high standing, were associated with it.

Calling at the Langdons' house one evening in February to receive directions regarding important work for the next day, Haines was somewhat puzzled at the peculiar smile on the senator's face. Answering the secretary's look of inquiry, the Mississippian said:

"I've been told that I can name the new holder of the fire thousand dollar a year position in the department of commerce and labor and that I have no one in particular from my state to name—that you would be a good man for the job. First I was glad for your sake, my boy, for if you wanted it you could have the position. But on thinking it over it seemed there might be something behind it not showing on the surface."

"It's a trick," said Haines. "Who made the offer?"
"Senator Stevens."

"I might have known," he replied, "the secretary. There's a crowd that wants you and me separated. Thought this bit too much for me to resist, did they?" Then he paused, rubbing his fingers through his hair in a perplexed manner. "Strange! Isn't it, senator, that a man of your position is offered this desirable piece of patronage, entirely unsolicited on your part, from the administration of another, a different political party? Especially when that other party has so many hungry would-be 'tax eaters' clamoring to enter the 'land of milk and honey.' I think Stevens deliberated."

"There, there, Bud," broke in Langdon, "you mustn't say anything against Senator Stevens to me. True, he is associated with some folks I don't approve of, but that doesn't necessarily mean anything wrong, and I myself have always found him thoroughly honest."

"Yes," muttered the secretary, following the senator into the library. "You've always found him honest because you think everybody's honest. But Stevens is just the doctor who will cure you of this ailment, this chronic trustfulness."

Haines laughed softly. "When Peabody's little stiege gets through hacking at the postulate body of political purity his two hundred sword of political corruption will need new edges."

Thus, far neither the senator nor his secretary had suspicion of any questionable deal in regard to the gift naval base. The rush of other events, particularly the fight over the reduction of the tariff, had pushed this project temporarily into the background so far as they were concerned, though the "boss of the senate" and his astuteness had been losing no time in perfecting their plans regarding the choice of Althea as the site.

Peabody and Stevens had ingeniously exploited Langdon at every possible opportunity in relation to the naval base. Asked about new developments in the committee on naval affairs, the ready answer was, "Better see Senator Langdon. He knows all about the naval base, has the matter in full charge. I really know little about it."

So by hiding behind the unsuspecting old hero of Crawfordville they diverted from themselves any possible suspicion and placed Langdon where he would have to bear the brunt of the great scandal that would, they well knew, come out at some future time—after their foul conspiracy against the nation had been consummated, after the fruits of their betrayal had been secured.

What, after all, the schemers concluded, the little matter of an investigation among senators to guilty senators who, deeply versed in the law, have devised a very compromising document, that could be admissible as evidence?

Why, the senate would appoint an investigating committee and investigate it itself, would it not, when the ridiculous scandal came?

And what senator would fear himself, or for himself, as he investigated himself, when the blame had already been put publicly on some one else, some simple minded old soul who could go back to his cotton fields in Mississippi and forget all about it, strong in his innocence, even though shorn of reputation, and desire to live?

To Save the Tablecloth.
Nothing is more provoking to the careful housewife than to have a perfectly clean tablecloth liberally bespattered with gravy the first time it is used. Get a large table napkin—one to match the tablecloth if possible—and a piece of white oilcloth cut an inch shorter and an inch narrower than the napkin. Place the oilcloth where the meat dish will stand and spread the napkin over it. The gravy cannot penetrate through the oilcloth. Thus there is a considerable saving in the washing bill.

Gives This Simple Home Recipe Which Anyone Can Easily Prepare.

DRIVES OUT THE URIC ACID

Don't Cost Much and Druggists Say It's the Only Mixture Known Which Cures Without Injuring the Stomach or Other Organs.

Thousands of men and women who have felt the sting and torture of this dread disease, which is no respecter of age, person, sex, color or rank, will be interested to know that while for many years rheumatism was considered an incurable disease, now it is one of the easiest afflictions of the human body to conquer. Medical science has proven it not a distinct disease in itself, but a symptom caused by inactive kidneys. Rheumatism is uric acid in the blood and other waste products of the system which should be filtered and strained out in the form of urine. The function of the kidneys is to sift these poisons and acids out and keep the blood clean and pure. The kidneys, however, are of a spongylike substance, the holes or pores of which will sometimes, either from overwork, cold or exposure become clogged and inactive and failing in their function of eliminating these poisons from the blood, they remain in the veins, decompose and settling about the joints and muscles cause the untold sufferings and pain of rheumatism and headache, often producing complications of bladder and urinary diseases, weakness, etc.

The following simple prescription is said to relieve the worst cases of rheumatism because of its direct action upon the blood and kidneys, relieving, too, the most severe forms of bladder and urinary troubles. Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce, Compound Sassaaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. The ingredients can be had from any good prescription pharmacy, and are absolutely harmless and safe to use at any time.

THE SHIPWRECKER.

His Life Made Up of Hardships, Adventures and Accidents.

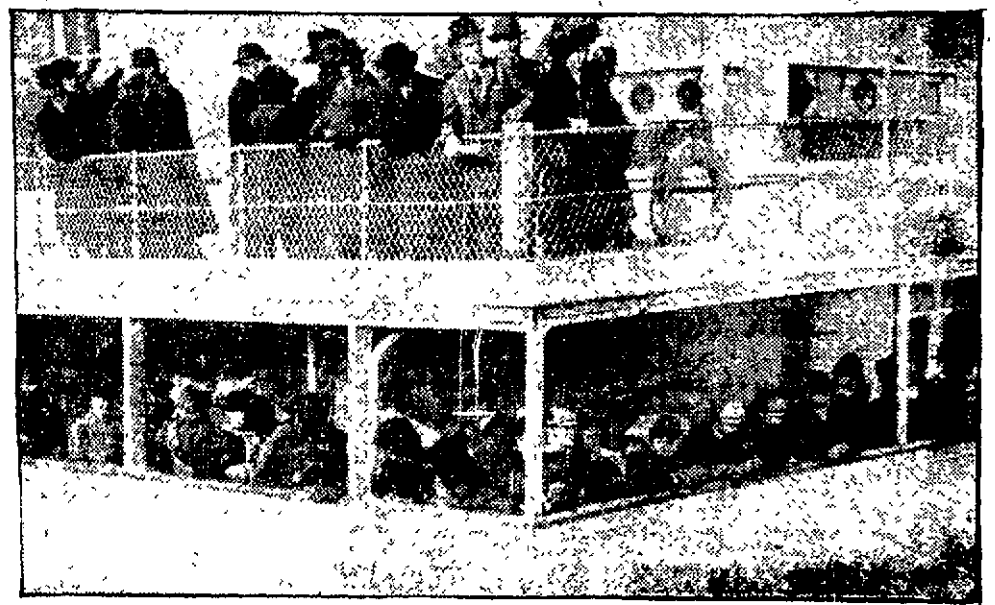

The career of the shipwrecker consists of a series of hardships and adventures and accidents and narrow escapes from the first day he enlists with a big wrecking company up to the time he is brought ashore from the grim ship he calls "home" crippled or fatally injured. Of all the professions that demand heavy toll of human life none, not even mining or powder making, is as dangerous as the one of these wreckers. Every year these daring men, who brave storm and wave and attempt to save the stranded liner, to raise the sunken ocean greyhound, to rescue the ship impaled upon rocks and, if nothing else, to save what valuable cargo may be removed from helpless wrecks meet death by the score. Many of them, exposed of ten for days and nights to the icy blasts of winter seas to driving billiards and to drenching storms that bite to the marrow, succumb to pneumonia. Others at work on the pitching, tossing barge have legs or arms shattered during the risky operations of removing masts or of slinging wrecking pumps or other castings that weigh tons. Others have hands or feet so dreadfully frozen that these must be amputated, and still others are wiped out of existence after suffering hours of untold agony and exposure before the eyes of their helpless comrades.—Appleton's Magazine.

A Thirteenth Century Drink.
Thirteenth century tastes in food had few limitations. Besides the "fowl" of Africa and the rare poultry of "Ioula" mentioned by Flavius Josephus, gourmets in the time of King John used to regale themselves on herons, cranes, crows, storks, cormorants and bitterns. Some would wash their meals down with wine, but the majority drank mead or metheglin. Mead, according to Hollinshed, was only the washing of the comb after the honey had been taken from them and so poor a beverage that it had to be spiced, peppered or made palatable with sweetener or thyme. But metheglin contained one hundredweight of honey to twenty-four gallons of water and must have been much more intoxicating than the strongest old ale of the present day.—London Chronicle.

Not a Romance.

"I think I'll take some liver."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A WIRELESS TRIUMPH.

How News of the Republic's Collision Was Telegraphed.

NO SLIP IN THE MESSAGES

Each Was Clear and Coherent—Told What Happened When White Star Liner Was Rammed by a Steamer Off Nantucket.

Wireless messages shot here and there along the Atlantic seaboard from vessel and from coast station spread information broadcast that the White Star liner Republic, which recently collided with the steamship Florida off Nantucket, needed aid, and needed it quickly. Various ships were set in motion, each an independent relief expedition. The revenue cutter Acushnet left Woods Hole Mass., and the steamship Baltic went on her way to extend what assistance she could. La Lorraine had crowded on all steam in order to get over the 200 or more miles separating her from the Republic, and her wireless instruments were taking messages from the injured vessel. The revenue cutter Gibsonton was making all speed toward the same focal point from a point off Cape Cod. All vessels within the wireless zone were picked up one after another and sent toward the scene of disaster. It was the first big sea disaster since wireless telegraphy became commercially practicable, and the new system of communication had scored a triumph.

There wasn't a slip in the messages. Each was clear and coherent. They told just what was happening off there in the fog, which lay like a shroud along the jagged outlines of the Massachusetts coast. The first message received in New York the one to the Maritime Exchange, told an entire story in itself. Furthermore, it was direct from the Republic. "In distress and sinking off Nantucket," it ran. Another followed hot upon the heels of the first. This contained information in detail. The Republic had been rammed by an unknown vessel, it was just as clear as daylight, but the revenue cutter Acushnet and the Baltic of the same line were within range of the wireless waves and were speeding toward her. After that La Lorraine was heard from with the additional information that she expected to reach the Republic in about four hours. The White Star line also got early word to the effect that there was no danger to life and that the Republic was talking with Nantucket.

The difference between the system of sending word by wireless and the old order of things had been strikingly shown. How marked the difference was made plain when one haiku back a little less than eleven years to the occasion of the last great sea disaster—the loss of La Bourgogne of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique. On the morning of July 6 a messenger boy from the offices of the Allan Steamship company in New York ran breathlessly into the building occupied by the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique carrying a crumpled telegram in his hand. He did not pause until he stood before Paul Faguet, the agent of the company. Then he stammered:

"The Bourgogne is lost!"
"Magnet threw up his arms. 'Mon Dieu!' he cried.
The boy exhibited the telegram. It was from the Western Union offices at Halifax.

There were no great poles at Nantucket then, from the top of which word was flashed through the air without the aid of wires, nor was there any such station at Newport or anywhere along the coast, which is now dotted with them. M. Faguet refused to believe the boy at first. Even when the youngster extended his hand and produced the crumpled telegram the French agent was incredulous. It told in the coarse physiology of the telegraph company how the steamship Gipsy was on her way to Halifax with the British tramp Cromartyshire on board of which were those saved from the French liner. The message

WIND SHIFTS AGAINST LEWIS.

Miners' Convention May Curtail President's Powers.

CHANGE OF SENTIMENT SEEN

Resolution is Adopted Declaring That National Board Has Exceeded Its Authority in Suspending the Om-cers of the Indiana District.

Indianapolis, Feb. 5.—All efforts of the United Mineworkers of the United States and Canada to forward the business of the assembly by excluding from its proceedings controversial matters of personal nature between factional leaders seem futile. Early in the day's session a resolution was adopted that all speakers on resolutions or motions must confine themselves strictly to the subject in hand, but nevertheless the day was one of turmoil and bickering.

President Lewis charged Delegate Peter Quinn of Illinois with having practically called him a liar. This matter under discussion was the administration of the strike in Alabama. The convention adopted a resolution to the effect that the national executive board had exceeded its authority in suspending the officers of the Indiana district for having disobeyed an order that the miners should return to work in the Hudson mine pending the adjustment of the strike there. This was a reversal of the action of a few days ago when the course of President Lewis and the executive board in this matter was approved, and indicates that the delegates will pass some measure limiting the authority of the national body in its relation to the district body. It is said there is a strong current toward restricting the power of the national administration.

SEVEN-HOUR DAY NEXT

Organized Labor Begins Agitation For Further Reduction.

Cleveland, Feb. 5.—Organized labor throughout the United States has started a move for the seven-hour day in all lines of work. Harry D. Thomas, secretary of the Cleveland United Trades and Labor council and of the Ohio Federation of Labor, announced today that the agitation for an eight-hour day was but a commencement of a larger movement.

The ultimate end is to reduce the hours of labor until all men are employed one hour a day if necessary to employ all. Only in this event, Thomas said, can workingmen share with their employers in the benefits of time and labor saving machinery.

His announcement was coincident with the meeting of the Cleveland Employers' association, called to consider the night now being made by labor to get eight-hour legislation for women.

THE SOISSON

"Graustark."
"Graustark" will be the offering at the Soisson Theatre, Tuesday, February 9, matinee and night. This dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's famous novel, comes to this city wearing the laurels given by our leading American critics for past performances.

It is said that this play is a realistic reproduction of the startling story that book lovers have read over, and tells in a decidedly dramatic form the romance of the "Gallant American" and the "Royal Princess," with a plentiful supply of humor to lighten the effect.

Gertrude Perry enacts the role of "Princess Yveline" and has been showered with praise for her interpretation of this difficult character. Her beauty, personal magnetism, and her advanced knowledge of stage technique have enabled her to present the love torn lady in a manner that captivates one. Alfred Britton portrays "Grenfell Lorry," the adventurous American with dash and spirit that is inspiring. The whole cast is exceedingly strong, each member having been selected on account of their special qualifications for the roles assigned them. It takes five acts to unfold the dramatic version of "Graustark" and a cabaret of scenic grandeur, painted by Castle & Harvey, and an exquisite array of bewitching costumes are carried to serve as a setting for this gem of romance.

"The Choir Singer."
"A play to suit all tastes" This is what is confidently claimed for "The Choir Singer," a refined comedy drama by Carroll Fleming, which will be presented at the Soisson Theatre tomorrow night, February 6.

Combined with a heart story of strong, human interest, and ingenious frame. He got away with the high score of 116 also high average of 97 1/2. Dudley VanHorn made his bow in first company, in fact he made several. He was in poor form, the pins breaking very bad he could get nothing but splits. O'Brien having the fine average of 94 1/2. Connelly by rolling 104 and 106 in the last two games brought his average up to 95. Last also did well having a 91 1/2 average. Johnson and Kane were out of form but they are to be relied upon when it is necessary. The old reliable Slow Bill Kelly had the fine average of 91 1/2. Gilbert, a new recruit, will have to brace up or he will lose his position. The tonight after the Car Shops' soup and another game will be rolled soon. Following are the scores:

Car Shops	1st	2nd	3rd	Total

SPORTING NOTES.

The Spokane Country Club is planning the finest golf course in the Northwest. Charles W. Boyer has resigned as President of the South Atlantic League. Manager Clark Griffith of Cincinnati, has sixteen pitchers to try out this spring.

It is said the Eastern League would like to annex Trenton, which belongs to the National League and St. Louis, which is in the New York State League Circuit.

You can't make the Cleveland fans believe otherwise than that it is the fault of the umpires that the Blues lose the pennant each season. Why send so many newspapers to enlighten the Chinese?

Now that Hank O'Day has signed his contract all of the National League umpires are in line. This is bad news for quite a bunch of fans who were in hopes that President Pullman might do away with umpires entirely the coming season.

Ban Johnson and Charlie Comiskey are houseboating along the Mississippi. No doubt about it, but houseboating is not enough to hold Harry Pullman and Charlie Murphy at the same time.

The name of Columbus, Ohio, has been changed to "Arch City." You can't blame them for changing it. And if Bill Clymer allows Indianapolis and Louisville to buy him again this year Columbus might be a well deserved name entirely.

Winning a pennant is a fine thing but something the other fellow would like to do. At a recent meeting of the Wisconsin-Illinois League Wausau, which had the best team in the league last season, was given the frosty eye and told to seek other company.

GET RID OF CATARRH HYOMEI

plot and numerous scenes in which the comedy element has full swing, is a musical feature which makes the play unusually attractive to theatre goers who have tired of clapnet melodrama and who have had a surfeit of gaudy so-called musical comedies.

The most elaborate stage setting has been provided by Manager W. E. Nankerville for "The Choir Singer," which is presented with a large and carefully selected cast of Metropolitan players. In fact, every excess of this latest of the season's successes is not only first class but artistic in every detail.

CASINO THEATRE.

"The High Flyers."

With a company of principals that represent the best in the field, with a chorus of 20 beautifully formed and handsome women, who are talented singers and dancers, with a wealth of glittering and gorgeous costumes costing more than $10,000 and with talented specialty acts for the olio, "The High Flyers," the peer of any organization in extravaganza and burlesque, comes to the Casino Theatre tonight.

The High Flyers company is a trademark that ensures the patrons of the theatre where it appears that they will get all that is claimed and see one of the best attractions of the season.

The program to be presented consists of two most amusing burlesques, one entitled "Levy Among the Daisies," and the second play is called "The Wild West." The two plays are filled with funny lines and situations, delightful songs and dances, thrilling intrigues and gives every member of the company every chance to please.

FAYETTE COUNTY'S FASTEST GROWING STORE.

February Selling Starts With a Rush in Our Big Stores.

We've practically eliminated the "dull season" from our calendar. We've accomplished this through the most aggressive of merchandising methods. Every day is a busy day here. February is considered a dull month by many merchants. They decide in advance that it will be "slow" and when it comes they sit with folded hands and patiently wait for the spring sunshine to warm the buying spirit in the now lethargic public. We wish they would take a peep into our busy stores during this busy month, if only to assure themselves that "dull seasons" in retail merchandising are a thing of the past. Every counter, every table, tells forcibly of the pains-taking preparation we have made for our February campaign.

Just What Our Post-Inventory Sales Are.

They are practically immense remnant sales, but so broad in their scope, so great in the variety of merchandise involved and so radical in the matter of price-lowering that they deserve a better name than "remnant sale" for they cannot be associated in any way with the mediocre sales that are so-called.

The remnants and small lots you find here are all new materials, not old, shop-worn, or out of style. They are the result of a successful season's business. They must be sold in conformity with our strict store policy.

This Sale of Small Lots and Remnants Will Be of Two Days Duration--Friday and Saturday, February 5 and 6
